I'm a generalist who created his first website at 13 and kept at it ever since. I'm a doer who ships through iteration, not perfection. Innate curiosity about the world and ordinary observations fuel my design ideas. Sitting at the crossroads of design, engineering, and business, I grasp problems better than most, spot issues early, and build solutions with people's needs at heart. I love a writing culture - articulating my thoughts with precision brings me deep satisfaction.
